Usually whenever I would meet Ms. Bertha, it was on a by-pass. We would say hello, and I would ask how everyone was doing. Then, of course, she would say everyone was doing fine, and we would each go our on way. But I am thankful for the day when she welcomed me into her home to spend some time with my sisters and brother. I will never forget that day (well that night rather). We laughed and talked about the things our parents use to do when we were children and updated each other about our own families. The time was well spent, but Ms. Bertha graciously allowed us to have that time together, and you know we can get loud sometimes when we're together. I believe precious memories such as these are the things that help us through our most challenging times. Those things that are honest, just, pure, lovely, and of a good report, think on these things, and the GOD of peace shall keep your hearts and mind. Phil. 4: 6-8 Love You Evans Family, Greta Lowe
